Dedication and Appreciation

I would first like to thank my sweet love who has been my constant sounding board and creative assistant through this and many other projects.

I would also like to thank my Mutti who has supported my creative endeavors (no matter how small or silly) since before I could even hold a pencil.

Introduction

Thank you for downloading and/or printing this generator. In the following pages you will find 16 tables full of original content to create thousands of new items. Not every roll will result in a perfect item but every item should be interesting at the very least.

My inspiration for this creation came from my own time as a game master always trying to come up with unique and interesting items to enrich the landscape of my games. This generator focuses primarily on mundane (or mostly so) items. There are a good many generators out there to create magic items with or apply magical effects over already made items, many of which can be used in conjunction with this generator splendidly. For this project I wanted to focus solely on the items themselves and what makes them tangibly interesting or unique.

If you are another creative game master (which if you are reading this there is a good chance you are) feel free to use any of the resulting items in your own endeavors but if you do choose to publish please give me a little shout out somewhere in the work. Whether you are a gamer, writer or GM I hope you enjoy what I've made here and use it in a way that makes your world a richer and deeper one.

Instructions

The only items you will need are a pair of percentile dice or a 100 sided die and something to write down your results with.

To begin, roll the die and match the resulting number up with an item type on Table 1: Type of Item. Next to each item you will see the letter T followed by a number, both in parentheses. This indicates the table number that corresponds to each item type. After you find the proper table roll the die again for each column presented. If a column is marked (Optional) it is exactly that, an extra option to make the item a little more unique. You do not need to use the (Optional) columns to create a complete items. Some tables will have columns marked (Option 1) and (Option 2). When you encounter these simply pick the option you would prefer between the two when you roll. You do not need to do separate rolls for each of these type of columns.

The Food table is the only table where the rolling methods differ. If you are rolling for items from that table you have the option of either rolling once for each column to get a full meal or rolling for one or two of the columns to get a lighter fare.

Example 1:

Keri rolls 38% for her first roll. She sees that that matches up with a Book on Table 7 (T7). She goes down to Table 7 and rolls again for Page Count. She rolls 63% which makes the book 500 pages. Keri then rolls a third time to find the Subject. This roll turns out to be 35% which gives her the options of either The Princess is a Goblin or The Vampires Lover. She decides to go with The Princess is a Goblin as it sounds a bit more exciting. Finally, she rolls for the Extra. The roll is an 18% which means the book is bound in a rather suspicious leather, how fitting for a tome about a Goblin princess.

Example 2:

For his first roll Jude rolls a 92%, a Food Item on Table 15 (T15). He looks at Table 15 and thinks for a moment about what type of food he wants to create. He decides on a savory meal. First, he rolls for the Protein of the dish and rolls a 71% for seitan. Jude isn't sure what Seitan is so he does a quick internet search and discovers that it's a protein made from wheat gluten, neat. Next, he rolls to find out what Spices or Flavorings are used on it. He rolls a 24% for cinnamon. He then rolls for the accompanying Vegetable which turns out to be an 82% for chard. He decides not to roll to spice the chard as it might clash with the cinnamon seitan. Finally, he rolls 59% for the Extra. This, unfortunately, means that the meal is poorly prepared, oh well, at least it's still edible.
