

Mordheim Random Rumours

use a D20 with players making up the rumour's effect

- 1 The seers have cast the runes and have foretold that something major is about to happen in Mordheim, they not what but are certain it can only be bad for the Sigmar-worshiping citizens of the Empire.
- 2 The Breached city wall in the Executioners District is controlled by the rat-men they will let you pass for a hefty toll of Wyrdstone, but be careful for the rat-men are deceitful and will betray your trust.
- 3 The Ironmongers and Smiths of the Metalworkers district have been disappearing with a strange regularity. Ores, tools and anvils have also gone missing. Looks like its not just Wyrdstone that is hunted for in the Metalworkers quarter.
- 4 The streets of the herring district are an even more dangerous place to be than usual for at dusk a red acrid mist floats down the streets poisoning all those that breath the noxious fumes.
- 5 Late at night a lone figure has been seen walking through the Market Square ringing a bell and then suddenly fading into the darkness
- 6 The Heretics who are so desperately sought after by the witch hunters have been seen more frequently in the Shysters and neighbouring districts, rumours are a bound that they are becoming more bolder by the day claiming territory and are no longer skulking in the shadows"
- 7 A large seam of Wyrdstone has been allegedly discovered imbedded in the foundations of a destroyed inn in the River Front district. This would explain the higher presence of the foul rat-men in the area although unusually I have heard that the worshippers of the dark gods have also been seen searching in the area, strange has they are rarely seen this far from The Crater
- 8 Strange noises have been heard emanating from Ducal Park during dawn on most days Pew the Beggar has heard it and he told Old John Liarby that it sounded like a large ferocious bird
- 9 It is said that a troll has a lair underneath the North Bridge, it is rarely seen however half-eaten goat carcasses have washed up on the shore close to the bridge
- 10 A ghostly figure has been seen around the Market Square late at night. It is said that he announces the names of the doomed those that will perish in the day to come.
- 11 The Breach in the city Wall previously being controlled by Rat Men is now under the hand of Buromeister, Rictor Van Half after his band of Marienburgers fort off the Skaven in a fierce street fight."
- 12 The Shades district has become a total no-go area even in the relative safety of daylight. The foul tendrils of Chaos have risen from the pit and now have total control of that area Whispers in the nearby Docks district say it is the Cult of Stone that now controls the Shades.
- 13 A creature described as a 'giant enraged bull' is said to be stampeding and out of control near the riverfront a reward of 12 finest bags of manure is offered to anyone that can kill the beast.
- 14 The following message was scrawled in chalk on a wall near the Northern Gate 'Uijt jt b Sfe lfssjoh' it is said he who deciphers it will gain knowledge of the whereabouts of the fabled Dark Shard said to be made of pure Wyrdstone.
- 15 The sounds of furnaces and the rhythmic hammering of metal have been heard ruminating from the clock tower in the dead of night
- 16 A coach swathed in black drawn by two hellish steeds is said to have been seen entering and leaving the castle on the last day of every month. The castle has been destroyed and abandoned since the fall of the comet so who is in the coach and what is there business at the castle remains a mystery
- 17 The waking dead are rising at the cemetery on the hill by Ducal park, be wary all who stray to close as rumours of the arrival of the Ghoul King persist
- 18 Wandering Grey Wizard, Malfus Dorgone has gone missing from his makeshift hut in the Reikland Encampment. His last known whereabouts was in the Shysters district heading for the Clock Tower.
- 19 The ferryman known as Falsse Hoode is said to have seen an encampment of fish-men on the banks of the stir he describes them as 'looking like you or me but blue and scaly' beware those who search for wyrdstone near the riverbank...
- 20 The weather closer to the crater has been known to become very unpredictable. Many have returned with tales of strong summer winds being replaced with violent snow storms, then only to be calm the next minute.)